

This figure displays a 1000x1000 grid of 2D Fourier transforms of handwritten digits from the MNIST dataset. The grid is organized into 10 groups of 100 rows, corresponding to digits 0-9. The columns represent different spatial frequencies or phases. A diagonal line of green is visible across the grid, indicating a specific relationship between the rows and columns. The digits are represented as red patterns on a green background.